Correspondence of the Star.

Niagara Falls, July 27.

A few days ago General W. B. Shattuck advertised in the Star, "Fare to Niagara Falls and return $15." The writer thought he would avail himself of that unusually low rate, and at once proceeded to the ticket office, and together with a small party procured tickets over the A. & G. W. railroad to Niagara and return. We took the 9:50 train in the evening, procured berths in the sleeping coach, and the next morning found ourselves hundreds of miles away from Cincinnati, and traveling at the rate of forty miles per hour. The road is in excellent condition, and well patronized as it deserves to be.

We reached Lake View at 1:30 P. M., meeting many Cincinnatians. We

We reached Lake View at 1:30 P. M., meeting many Cincinnatians. We passed on to Jamestown, from there to Kennedy, the present terminus of the Buffalo & Jamestown Railroad, where we changed cars, and were soon on our way to Buffalo. This Buffalo & Jamestown Railroad has just been completed, and bids fair to be quite a thoroughfare in connection with the A. & G. W. R. R., being a bee-line from Cincinnati to Arriving at Buffalo, we visited several points of interest, the most noticeable of which was Fort Porter. The grounds about the Fort are kept in excellent order. The interior remains about as it was left in the war of 1812. The cannon are removed, but the tracks upon which they were moved still remain. The mas-sive stone building for ammunition, which is built in the interior of the Fort which is built in the interior of the Fort and some distance below the breastworks, is in rather a delapidated condition, some years ago it having been burned and left in that condition.

It is impossible to give the slightest conception of the beauties of Buffalo and its surroundings. We will say that the tourist passing through Buffalo should by all means stop a few days. The time can be fully occupied with visits to the many points of interest. NIAGARA FALLS.

About an hour's ride brought us to this world-renowned place. In a very short space of time after appearing on the street we were surrounded with about a score of hackmen, all anxious to take us in. We finally struck up a bargain with an old veteran, who, it is said, carried the first hod to build the Falls.

There is nothing new to tell of this place. It is certainly grand beyond comprehension, and to the render we would say avail yourself of the present low rates of fare, and by all means visit the Falls of Niagara.

In looking over the hotel registers for a day or two past we saw the names of the following Cincinnatians: Mr. and Mrs. Thos. M. Worester, Mr. and Mrs. Lowman, at the International; at the Cataract House, J. H. Steiner, D. Holmes and family, J. W. Barber and Miss L. Barber, J. D. Sims and daughter; at the Spence House, C. W. Merrill. Yesterday a large party of Cincinnatians from Lake Chautauqua came down here on ah excursion given by the B. & J. R. R. Co., and returned the same day. More anon.
